

Desk Top Sources Back Ground

Desk top sources means you find out about the area you'll be examining before you go there. To find out information you could use maps, photos, records and clues.

Site Photograph

The colour of the grass is lighter than the first field it also has a lot of earthworks.

Aerial Photograph

You can see more earth than usual, the earthworks you can see more clearly.

Cultivation Terraces

This is where the farmers plant the seeds to grow, the machine they use makes ~~the~~ marks on the grass.

Enclosures

It's where people have lived but over the houses have been knocked down and have left earthworks.

Maps

They could help you find where you are or where you want to be. They can also show you things ~~that have~~

Charlotte Clarke

~~Like~~ Like the remains of old buildings or where something stood a long time ago. If you ~~to~~ compare an old map and a new map you can see the changes over the years.

Site Works

Previous Archaeological Work